BRATTLEBORO WINS INTERSCHOLASTICS

Competition Keen in Third Annual High School Track Meet

ELEVEN RECORDS BROKEN

Fourteen Schools Enter Total of Over Hundred Men

With the weather conditions ideal on Saturday morning, after rather discouraging preliminaries on Friday, Brattleboro High School ran away with first place in the Third Annual Interscholastic Track and Field Meet, amassing a total of 60 points, against the 23 points for Rutland High and 15 1-2 for Woodstock High. The rest of the points were scattering, Troy Conference Academy taking 9 1-4, St. Johnsbury Academy 6, Burlington 5, St. Peter's School 4, Middlebury High 2 1-4, and Proctor High School 1. Black River Academy, and Bristol, Pittsfield, Waitsfield, and Winthrop (N. Y.) High Schools were unable to score.

The competition was keener than ever before in the history of these Interscholastics and the field was unusually fast. In the fourteen events, eleven records were set, Brattleboro leading the competition by setting seven new marks. Of these Moran accounted for three and Lawton, two, and the relay team another.

Both cups and shield went to Brattleboro High School, for the white and blue runners, beside winning the meet, also captured first in the relay, while Moran was awarded the individual point cup, with a total of 29 points to his credit. Lawton, also of Brattleboro, was second high point scorer, taking 22 points.

Much credit goes to Pollard of Burlington, who ran the half mile in the unusually fast time of 2 minutes 14 4-5 seconds. All three places in the 100 yard dash went to Brattleboro, Moran taking first place in 11 seconds. Lawton and Moran tied for first place in the pole vault, at 9 feet 6 inches, with four men tied for third place.

Woodstock High School showed up particularly well, capturing third place in the Meet with a team of but eight men. Rutland was pushed hard throughout the day, and until the last few events the relative position was uncertain.

Summary—

100 yard Dash: Won by Moran (Brat.); second Lawton (B); third Wells (B). Time 11 seconds.

Pole Vault: Moran (B) and Lawton (B) tie for first; Bourdon (W), Walker (W), Whitaker (T. C. A.), and Eddy (M) tie for third. Height 9 feet 6 inches.

This was in many respects the most entertaining Junior Play in recent years. Although the plot is not especially interesting, nor the theatrical devices employed original, the story gives an opportunity for the effective presentation of a large variety of comedy types. These must be handled, if the play is to go, with just that degree of farcical caricature which appeals to the amateur actor. The cast rose to their opportunity in a manner which was a delight to the audience.

Even the slight love interest in the play, so difficult to handle without self-consciousness, was developed successfully thanks to the excellent acting. We have only commendation for the way in which Mr. Brown and Mr. Stockwell brought out the characters of Douglas and Harry. The acting of Miss Douglas and Miss MacDonald was also true to the characters of the two young women, with just enough difference between them to bring out their individualities. Perhaps the character which was conceived most truly in the spirit of high comedy was that of Mrs. Stead. In many respects the acting of Miss Billings was quite the best of the evening. It was unfortunate that she departed from the stage at the end of Act I.

The three chief comedy characters, however, were Mr. Cattermole, Rev. Robert Spaulding, and Miss Ashford. Mr. Ross, as Cattermole, took the audience by storm. They were fascinated by his make-up, overcome by his explosions of wrath, and in entire sympathy with his disappointment in his supposed nephew. His was a compelling personality. On the other hand the appeal made by the Rev. Robert Spaulding was found in the negative qualities of his shrinking nature. Mr. Brautigam conceived him as a "poor simp" and was true throughout to his conception. Wedded to his goloshes, his bath bun, and his "goods and chattels", he mingled with the other characters as one apart, a "medium" in every sense of the word. There is nothing possible but praise for Mr. Brautigam's artistic carrying out of

JOHN G. HOWES TO ASSIST IN HISTORY

Provost Announces Appointment of Sanford Graduate to Teach Mediaeval and Modern History

The Office of the Provost announces the appointment of Mr. John Gaylord Howes to the faculty of Middlebury College as Instructor in History for the ensuing year. Mr. Howes is at present pursuing his studies for a doctor's degree in the graduate school of Stanford University and holds one of the University fellowships, a high distinction as only two such fellowships are awarded each year.

He is a native of New York and passed his early life in New York and Connecticut. He seriously considered at one time attending Middlebury College, but the removal of his family to the Pacific Coast naturally caused a change in his plans. After graduating from Stanford University in 1914 he remained for a year of graduate work, receiving an A. M. in 1915. From 1915 to 1920 he has been engaged in high school and junior college teaching, except for one year when in military service. Without exception the persons under whom he has worked as a student and as a teacher speak of his work in highest terms. In connection with his teaching positions, special mention has been made of his interest in athletics and other student activities.

Next year Mr. Howes will have charge of the courses in Mediaeval and Modern History (two sections), English History, and Modern Europe. Professor Kline will hereafter devote his entire time to the work in American History.

VERMONT, OUTHIT, BESTS BLUE 5-4

Hulihan's Masterful Hurling Futile In Face of Team's Errors

NEWTON HAMMERED HARD

Found for Total of Twelve Bingles ---Hulihan Allows But Five

Outhitting Vermont's batsmen 12-5 but according Hulihan ragged support in the pinches the 'Varsity nine lost by the close score of 5-4 in the first of the Junior Week games Thursday on Porter Field. Striking out fourteen men and keeping the few hits that he allowed well scattered Hulihan, on the mound for the home team, was the sensation of the game and easily outshone Newton, Vermont's star twirler. With two out in the third, errors on the part of the 'Varsity let in three runs and gave the visitors a lead which the home team was unable to overcome despite a determined rally later in the game.

Keen Rivalry

The tenseness characteristic of all meetings of the two rivals in the past was not absent from last week's encounter. Vermont did not bring as large a body of rooters as usual but spirit was not lacking in their determined responses to the cheering of the crowded Middlebury stand which continued throughout the game. When Vermont took the field in the last of the first inning Tryon, on third, heaved the first ball that was hit in his direction, by Hastings, over McGinnis' head into the bleachers giving early indication of the lack of precision which marked the visitors' playing during the entire game. Middlebury's shifted line-up, occasioned by the injuries of Ross and Stockwell which kept them out of the game, did not work out badly with the exception of a couple of costly infield errors early in the game. Weeks, in right field, made two brilliant catches and accounted for the last score of the game as the result of singles by himself, Hastings and Gallagher.

White's Error Disastrous

Vermont started the scoring and led thereafter, as the result of a double over right field fence by Tryon in the second, who scored on Conlon's single. In the next inning three more scores were annexed. Billings, first up, fanned. Harris rapped out a two-bagger, McGinnis flying out to Hastings. Burns stepped in the way of one of Hulihan's curves and received a free ticket, going down to second when White muffed Tryon's fly to third. White made a poor throw to second and in the confusion which resulted both Harris and Burns crossed the plate. Tryon registered another score a moment later on Garrity's single. Vermont's final tally came in the eighth as the result of Burns' triple to left which brought in Brock, the former being tagged at home on endeavoring to stretch it into a circuit clout.

Middlebury's Rally Too Late

Middlebury made her first scores in the sixth. Hulihan was hit by a swift one from Newton and trotted down to first. Burns fumbled Elmer's hot grounder between third and short and Hulihan came home. McGinnis caught Timberman's fly and Mead's single brought in Elmer. In the next inning Hastings got to first on hit to right

An Old Problem

Bobus Higgins, representative of the common people, in Carlyle's immortal treatise on government, "Past and Present," conceived a remedy for England's Nineteenth Century ills were she but able to determine and recognize those able and worthy to lead her. He admitted that such a so-called "Aristocracy of Talent" in our sordid and selfish world, filled with vain and petty ambitions, is indeed difficult to accomplish but succeeding statesmen and writers have not considered the task utterly hopeless or altogether impossible of attainment. William James in an essay on the value of a college education suggests a function of the college-bred man which tends to a happy realization of that same artistocracy of the talented, government by those fit to govern, for which friend Bobus Higgins craved. "The best thing a college education can aspire to accomplish for you is this," says James, "that it should help you to know a good man when you see him."

Tuesday night the Undergraduate Association will convene to elect officers for the coming year. The selection of these leaders is a right and privilege which every member of the men's college enjoys but it is also a right and privilege which carries with it an inescapable obligation. Will we, as college men, accept the challenge to us implied in William James definition of the value of our education? Tuesday it shall be our duty to select from those already nominated, the men best endowed with the proper qualifications for leadership. It will be a social wrong to remain away from the polls on this occasion, for to do so is to neglect one's first duties of college citizenship, but it will be a still more grievous wrong to use the ballot as a means of furthering vain, selfish, and petty ambitions with blind disregard of the dictates of conscience or the best interests of Middlebury.

The Undergraduate Association is about to enter on its third year after its formation as an outgrowth of the old College Union. It has met and solved problems that have perplexed and discouraged. If it is to so continue to function as a successful governing organization it must continue to have capable leaders. But together with this, it must also benefit by stronger cohesion of Middlebury men and less adhesion of party and fraternity factions. We cannot confine our selections to within the narrow confines of party vision but must rise to an inspiration and desire for the better kind of man and government and a wholesome disgust for the mediocre and cheap, for if we are to progress, it is the better kind of man who must show the way that we may follow.

A Worthy Cause

That there has been a crying need for a new curtain for the gymnasium stage has been apparent for some time, for the dilapidated condition of the one formerly in use has been such as to call forth much comment and criticism. Through the efforts of a Faculty Committee consisting of Professors Lacalle, Burrage and Robinson one has finally been obtained and installed, moreover, in time for the Junior Week activities, for it would have been practically impossible to have continued the use of the old curtain, especially during a period when it was, of necessity, brought so conspicuously under observation.

But it must be remembered that it was procured under certain difficulties, and that those in charge secured its arrival here at the desired time, only on the assurance that they would be amply supported by the whole student body in the efforts which they are putting forth for the acquirement of sufficient money to, at least, partially defray the expense of the curtain. Beginning this evening, a most interesting program has been arranged, and one which is well worth the price of admission, if regarded only from the standpoint of the benefit and pleasure to be gained from it. The three foreign travel lectures, which are to be delivered by men having a full and definite knowledge of their subjects, promise a most enjoyable and profitable course, while the vaudeville show by members of the Faculty and students will furnish a decidedly unique sort of entertainment.

The program has been arranged for a cause which is benefiting the whole college and it seems only fair that the whole college should, in turn, do its best to make it a success. This cannot be accomplished save by the whole-hearted support of everyone.

A Good Advertisement

The success of the Third Annual Interscholastic Track Meet held here last Friday and Saturday was most apparent and should insure the incorporation of this event as a regular annual feature of coming Junior Weeks. Inaugurated in 1919, the Interscholastics have undergone a steady and healthy growth which would warrant every confidence that in the future this will be continued as one of the best methods of college advertising existant at Middlebury. In the first meeting of the high school contestants but forty men, representing eight Vermont secondary schools were entered; in the second sixty men contested; and in this last competition fourteen schools sent a total of over one hundred men. With such interest manifest as in the last meeting and the increased competition the college cannot well afford to drop the Interscholastics nor to decrease the annual appropriation for the use of those in charge of the event.

To the track management and to all others who contributed to the success of this feature of Junior Week designed particularly for the interests of subfreshmen, The Campus extends its congratulations for their efficient preparation and execution. Relative to the meet and of their efforts, The Rutland Herald remarks, "During the games the school boy contestants were guests of Middlebury College and were royally entertained. Every one speaks in the highest terms of the hospitality accorded them and of the efficient manner in which the games were run off."

Such publicity is college advertising of the very highest sort.

The Periscope

A certain contestant in last week's oratorical classic evidently entertained strong convictions about residents of our most pretentious dormitory, in uttering the following, and we dare say he has set many of us thinking.

"How many of you have seen the collection of wild animals in Hepburn Hall?"

—From speech entitled "A. Barton Hepburn".

Supply and Demand!

Side by side in a downtown display window we noted two posters, remarkable for the apt association of ideas they inspired. Said one—

1922 Junior Play
"The Private Secretary"
by
Charles Hawtrey etc., etc.

Said the other—
EGGS WANTED!

Last week we passed, with breathless haste, that milestone of seasons, May 15. Will the radicals who introduced "hard dicers" during last winter obey the dictates of fashion and mothball the "cast-iron bowler" in favor of an African Jungle hat?

The game with Springfield was a fast game.
Howzat?
Soon over.

After sitting through nine innings of ball game and seeing Vermont outhit 12-5 and Hulihan strike-out 14 batters, with still the score against us, it was indeed some consolation when we returned from the ball game, to find Squire Hopkins' grass cutter mowing down the green and gold on the campus.

The familiar bits of red ribbon which recently made their appearance on the campus are not to be taken as indication that their feminine wearers are members of the Bolshevist creed. No, constant reader, they are Banshees!

Had the outcome of the rope-pull been reversed, it would be easy to explain the dearth of matches among freshmen. Their lucifers would have been rendered useless by the deluge of the minature Niagara the losers passed through.

Hard Times

Casting a critical optic over last week's issue of The Campus, we came upon the following, "The 'Varsity Baseball, on returning from its southern trip, will play three games on Porter Field....." What would happen if the ball went over the fence?

An Argument Against Prohibition

"Some years ago three Englishmen on a wager, decided to test their water-drinking powers. The winner swallowed twelve quarts, the second drank nine quarts, and the third consumed seven quarts. Very soon after their remarkable feat however they each died." —The Vermont Phoenix

The Faculty Club was entertained by a dissertation on the Bacon Controversy. Better to have addressed the Home Ec Club and settled once and for all that much mooted question, "Is bacon fat or lean?"

Professor Cady performed a very useful function at the Junior Play. He gave the cues when to laugh.

We wish it understood that "Ball and Chain" is not our real name, but is merely our nom-de-plum. In other words since it carries with it a suggestion of convicts and their habitations, we might say that it is our pen-name.

—Ball and Chain

EIGHTY COUPLES ATTEND JUNIOR PROM FRIDAY

The 1922 Junior Prom held in the McCullough Gymnasium Friday evening, May 13, from eight until two o'clock, was attended by about eighty couples. The decorations of the gymnasium were very attractive, the principal feature being an electrically lighted sign, bearing the class numerals, which was suspended from the center and from which extended blue and gold streamers to the corners and sides of the hall. Blue and gold, the class colors, were again carried out in the dance programs which were card cases, heavy Middlebury blue leather with the lettering in gold. During intermission refreshments, consisting of sandwiches and coffee, ice-cream and cakes, were served. The Metropolitan Clique of Albany, N. Y., furnished music for twenty dances and two extras.

The patrons and patronesses were Professor and Mrs. Vernon C. Harrington, Professor and Mrs. Phelps N. Swett, Professor and Mrs. Arthur M. Brown, Miss Eleanor S. Ross and Mrs. Maud O. Mason. The committee in charge consisted of H. Elliott Lane, Chairman, Karl A. Brautigam, Charles W. Crew, Herbert C. Leach, Barney F. Potratz, Hubert W. Williams, Velma D. Gates, Madeleine I. Gaylor, Madeline N. McDonald, Adele S. Jones, Ella B. Wright and Charles C. Baldwin, ex-officio.

GIVE FIRST OF FACULTY LECTURE SERIES TONIGHT

Beginning this evening at 7 o'clock with a lecture by Professor D. L. Robinson on "The Tourists' Paris and a Peaceful France", a series of entertainments will be given in the gymnasium, the proceeds from which are to be used toward defraying the expenses of the new curtain. On Thursday evening "Following Great Men Through Greece" will be given by Professor W. S. Burrage and on Friday Professor J. Moreno-Lacalle will take as his subject, "The Spain of Romance and Reality." These lectures will all be illustrated by lantern slides.

The final entertainment in the series will be a Vaudeville Show to be given by members of the Faculty and students on Tuesday evening, May 24, at 8 o'clock.

Miss Billings Heads Student Gov't

Margart I. Billings '22 was elected president of the Women's Student Government Organization for the coming year at election of officers last Wednesday afternoon. The other officers elected were: Mildred Jenkins '22, Vice-president; Barbara Stilphen '23, Secretary; Margaret Jenkins '22, Treasurer; and Dorothy Douglas '22, Fire Chief.

Musical Clubs Give Concert

The Associated Glee and Mandolin Clubs, in a concert given last Thursday evening in connection with the Junior Week festivities, presented a well-rounded out program, which was enthusiastically received by an audience which filled the Opera House to the limit of its capacity.

The performance was practically the same as that presented on the recent tour of the clubs.

Seniors Name Junior Marshals

At a meeting of the Senior Class Tuesday afternoon Ruth L. MacArthur and Harry E. Brown were elected Junior Class Marshals for Class Day. The Senior Ball Committee announced yesterday will consist of Brigham, chairman; Noonan, Keppler, Whitmore, Aines and Misses Ottman, Taylor, Ashworth and Johnson.

CHEMISTRY SCHOOL ANNOUNCES COURSES

Program for Summer Session Designed to Meet Needs of Four Separate Classes of Students

The School of Chemistry of the 1921 Summer Session will open on July 1 with a new and more comprehensive program of study than has been offered in previous years. This new program has been designed to meet the needs of Middlebury students and others who find it advantageous to study some special branch of the science during the summer. The program is designed to meet the special needs of four classes of students as follows: medical and biology students; chemistry teachers in secondary schools; students wishing to extend their knowledge of Industrial Chemistry along special or general lines; and students desiring to begin or review General Chemistry.

The new courses to be offered this year are "Industrial Chemistry", a series of the more important chemical industries, and "Technical Analysis", a laboratory course in Quantitative Analysis, with special reference to methods used in industrial operations. Both courses are of advanced, or "C", grade and may be counted toward a Master's degree.

Of special interest to those who wish to review or begin the first year work of the department, is the course in "General Chemistry." This course will be conducted on the same plan that is followed in Chemistry I of the regular college year and it is planned to so arrange the amount of work in the course that six semester hour credits may be obtained. It is hoped that this particular feature of the course will attract a large number of students.

In addition to the foregoing two courses in "Organic Chemistry for Medical Students and Biologists", a course in "Teaching Chemistry in Secondary Schools" will be offered. Of the two organic courses, one will consist of lectures concerning the general field of the carbon compounds with methods of preparation and properties with special reference to the needs of the class. The other course will be a laboratory course to accompany the lectures of the first or to be elected separately as best meets the requirements of the individual student. Either course may be elected alone.

The "Teachers' Course" is designed to furnish a review of the more difficult parts of General Chemistry and to assist the teacher in solving those problems of effective lecture demonstration and simplified laboratory equipment that always confront the teacher with a limited amount of special apparatus at his disposal. This course should prove of special value to those who plan to teach the science.

Credits towards either of the Baccalaureate and Master's degree may be obtained in the courses of the school and a wide range of selection of special work will be permitted. A student may devote his entire time to one or more courses in the school.

The school will be under the direction of Professor Voter as Dean and Professor Davis, also a member of the regular Department of Chemistry will be a member of the instructing staff.

The social and recreational side of the school which accompanies summer work of this nature, will not be overlooked. Special attention will be given to arrangements for week-end excursions to the Green Mountains and the Long Trail.

PARRY WINS PRIZE SPEAKING CONTEST

$130 Divided Among Four Contestants—Hunter, Healy and Houghton Take Other Places

In the Parker Prize Speaking Contest for members of the freshman class, held last Wednesday evening, May 11, in Mead Memorial Chapel, eight men picked by competition contested for the four prizes, which were of $50, $35, $25, and $20 respectively. In past years the Merrill Prize Speaking Contest for sophomores and the Parker Contest have been held in conjunction, there being but four speakers and two prizes for the latter contest. It was decided this year, however, to increase both the number of contestants and prizes and to hold the contests on different dates. Another innovation introduced this year was the original orations delivered by the speakers. Each contestant was required to write his own speech as a part of the competition. As in former years, Professor Davison directed the coaching of the men.

The first prize was won by David H. Parry, who spoke on "Americanism". Mr. Parry was also winner of the Wetherell Debating Prize. Second prize was awarded to James A. Hunter, whose subject was "Music in Life". The third prize went to Arthur K. Healy, who took "Cardinal Gibbons" as his subject and "Save Vermont's Forests", by Ralph L. Houghton, was awarded the fourth prize.

The other speakers were Edgar T. Austin on "Disarmament", Robert P. Force on "The Honor System at Middlebury", Stanton A. Harris on "A. Barton Hepburn", and Donald W. Riley on "Commercial Relations with Soviet Russia".

Musical selections were rendered during the evening under the direction of the Department of Music and were well received. The Judges for the contest were Hon. P. M. Meldon of Rutland, and Professor J. I. Lindsay and Rev. I. C. Smart of Burlington.

POTRATZ SCORES 3 POINTS IN MEET AT SPRINGFIELD

Takes Second Place in Hammer Throw at N. E. Intercollegiates

Barney F. Potratz, Middlebury's sole entrant in the annual championship games of the Eastern Intercollegiate A. A., held Saturday at Springfield, Mass., by taking second place in the hammer throw accounted for three points for the college. Owing to Junior Week activities, particularly the Junior Play, Middlebury was unable to enter a team in the competition and Potratz went down independently. Owing to injury he was unable to compete in his other specialty, the discus, and the event went to J. Ferris, Holy Cross who distanced 111 feet.

It was a notable meeting for the colleges participating, records being broken in 12 of the 14 events. Boston College was easily the victor with 39 points and Holy Cross second with 22. The standing of the other colleges was Springfield, 19; St. Lawrence, 17; Rensselaer, 13; Massachusetts Aggies, 8; Norwich, 7; Tufts, 5; Worcester, 6; Vermont, 4; Northeastern, 4; Stevens, 4; Middlebury, 3; Trinity, 3.

Kane of St. Lawrence won the hammer throw handily with a throw of 140 feet, thus setting a new Association record. Potratz's throw, which placed him second went 114 feet 2 inches. "Don" Howe, St. Lawrence and ex-Middlebury '22 took third with 113 feet 3 inches.

Frosh Win Annual Rope Pull

In the annual rope-pull between the sophomores and the freshmen, which took place Friday afternoon at the rear of the Old Chapel, the freshmen easily defeated their opponents, thus earning the right to discard their pea-greens during the rest of the year. Better preparation and superior teamwork enabled the 1924 men to pull the sophs through a stream of water laid from a near-by hydrant. The event was witnessed by many students, subfreshmen, and guests.

ERRORS GIVE SPRINGFIELD 5-2 WIN OVER 'VARSITY

Middlebury lost the second game of the Junior Week series Friday afternoon on Porter Field when she went down to defeat at the hands of the Springfield Y. M. C. A. College 5-2.

Springfield seemed to find no difficulty in hitting Elmer and errors at critical moments accounted for most of Springfield's scores. The Springfield team on the other hand played almost airtight ball.

Elmer's control was admirable. He passed no one while Hobart who started the game for Springfield lost control in the fifth inning and passed three men. He was taken out and with a new pitcher, McClellan, in and Hulihan up our chances for scoring looked good but "Ike" was retired on strikes.

The only excitement of the game came in the second inning when Merriman of the visitors hit to deep center for a home run, driving in another run ahead of him.

| Score by innings:— | | R. | H. | E. |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Springfield | 0 2 1 0 0 1 0 0 1 | —5 | 8 | 2 |
| Middleb'ry | 1 0 0 0 1 0 0 0 0 | —2 | 4 | 7 |

Summary—Home runs, Merriman; two base hits, Whitmore 1, Bennett, Diener; bases on balls: off Hobart 4, McClellan 2; struck out: by Elmer 5, Hobart 4, McClellan 2; umpire, Capeless; time, 2 hours, 30 minutes.

his intensely comic conception of the character. Miss Gaylor presented the character of Miss Ashford as a mid-Victorian old maid "vamp" of the gushing variety. She clawed spirits out of the air as a weasel sucks eggs, hungrily; and yet she confessed to having read Fielding.

Mr. Robinson, as Gibson, the tailor, was, for a black-haired man, the best red-haired drunk in captivity; a dream of the good old days that are no more. Of the combination butler and writ-server with the detachable mustache, both parts taken by Mr. Reinbrecht, it is enough to say that except for a little inexpertness, so common to the young, in the use of his upper register of vocal tones, he carried his dual part to perfection. It was almost an impossibility to tell him from himself. There remains only Mr. Marsland. They took Jack Horner and put him in a corner and when he came out he had grown the most splendiferous pair of side-burns that ever caparisoned a human jaw. Then they endowed him with a past which he was trying to keep a dead secret and found they had a man for the part. His nervous solemnity in the presence of the garrulous Mr. Cattermole was pathetic. Mr. Cattermole might divulge that past.

Professor Burrage and his assistants are to be congratulated upon a repetition of former successes and the thanks of the college is due to the class of 1922 for an evening of unalloyed pleasure.

SUPERIOR PITCHING WINS FOR ST. MICHAEL'S 3-2

In spite of good work by Hastings, Middlebury lost to St. Michael's in a close but slow game by the score of 3-2 on Porter Field, Saturday afternoon. The winners put on a much stronger team than last year and were greatly aided by the masterful hurling by their star twirler, Clark.

Middlebury jumped into the lead in the first inning when Hastings drove out a hit. Gallagher followed suit and a two base wallop by Elmer scored both men. In the second inning St. Michael was able to tally once through errors by the home team. Middlebury held the lead until the sixth, when Clark cracked out a three-bagger forcing in two more. The visitor's one-run lead was never in any great danger during the remainder of the game.

The work of Hastings featured for Middlebury. He allowed nine safeties but kept them fairly well scattered and with good support might easily have won. He fanned seven men and batted for 100. Clark was the best bet for the visitors, starring at the bat with a triple and on the mound with thirteen strike-outs to his credit.

The game was marred by loose ball and many infield errors. The home team had evidently not yet recovered from the slump suffered after the Vermont game.

The score by innings:

| | 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 | |
|---|---|---|

Runs made: by Sullivan, McCullough, Clark, Gallagher, Elmer. Two-base hit: Mead. Three-base hit, Clark. Sacrifice hit: Gallagher. Double plays: Weeks, Whitmore and Gallagher; Weeks and Gallagher. Struck out, by Hastings 7, by Clark 13. Base on balls, by Hastings 2, by Clark 3. Umpire, Capeless of Rutland.
